The Development, Relief and Education for Alien Minors Act would allow undocumented children to access higher education and achieve their dreams of becoming productive U.S. citizens. In order to qualify, children would have had to have arrived in the United States before their 16th birthday, live in the U.S. for 5 years, have good moral character, and graduate from a U.S. high school. Find out more at www.bigskydream.org.
